FRANCE.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—A despatch from a French source says that the fighting around the city of Orleans was renewed this morning between a body of Prussian troops and Frenchmen. After a short conflict, the latter retired, with a loss of thirty killed and wounded. The French loss is not known.

VERSAILLES, Oct. 12, via STRASBURG.—Yesterday the 2d and 3d Army of the Loire was driven out of Orleans after nine hours' fighting. Orleans was occupied by the Germans. The Prussian loss was very heavy. The Bavarians suffered severely.

The Bavarian Corps engaged in this conflict was the 1st, commanded in this engagement by Gen. Von der Tann. An engagement occurred on the 10th between the Prussians and French at Montargis, twenty-four miles from Orleans, in which the latter were defeated and driven out of the place.

ARMY MOVEMENTS.

The occupation of Orleans by the Prussians is said to have completely cut off the French from the left bank of the river.

The Prussians are having cavalry, and marching to Meaux. Turning from St. Quentin, they threaten Amiens.

An engagement occurred at Montargis, yesterday, between Prussians and Bavarians. No report given.

A force of eight hundred Prussians and five hundred Saxons have already occupied Gien. The Germans number 5,000. Another detachment of 3,000 men is said to be on the march. Nevertheless, it is believed that hard fronts have entered Gien, the advance guard of the army of the Loire.

The French fire from the fortifications of Metz continues incessantly. The Prussian forces are being reinforced. Gen. Manteuffel, with his army, is said to be at Nancy.

Lonpon, Oct. 14.—[By Cable.]—Yesterday's dispatch from Versailles says that the Bavarians defeated Bourbaki on the 10th, but only "Today's battle was the most important since Sedan, and was fought on the same ground." Bourbaki's army is therefore still there, and probably not defeated.

Despatches received from Count Bismarck's quarters at Meaux, on the 11th, 12th, and 13th inst., were received in London this morning. They contain nothing of importance. Arrests, preparatory to the siege operations, and a large amount of provisions and munitions captured, are mentioned. Prisoners were turned over to the Prussians. Provisions were dumped, and then broke. Through my glass I could see a Commission even pushed on the villages of Maison, Brulee, and Gonesse, along the Meaux, Beaubie to Paris road. Provisions, and, last night, a large number of cattle from the suburbs also of Mount St. Jean.

The transport of POWERS, Hay; but [illegible] Gonesse, Maison, and Mount St. Jean. Provisions were dumped, and then broke. Through my glass I could see a Commission even pushed on the villages of Maison, Brulee, and Gonesse, along the Meaux, Beaubie to Paris road. Provisions, and, last night, a large number of cattle from the suburbs also of Mount St. Jean.

The transport of POWERS, Hay; but [illegible] Gonesse, Maison, and Mount St. Jean.

Despatches from Versailles to-day state that the Germans have commenced to fortify the villages of Grandes and Petites Tournelles, Bry and Maxe were overwhelmed by a detachment of Bavarians. The Bavarians lost heavily in St. Remy would not fall back, as it should in common prudence, but was determined to die on the ground. Their conduct excites the admiration of the Germans. The Bavarians captured Orleans, General Legay, Magny, and Tiori were recently at Asnieres, preparing to visit Napoleon at Wilhelmshohe, having received permission to do so from Count Bismarck.

Latest letters from Germany indicate the utmost determination to prosecute the war to the end. Bismarck urges Napoleon by power if it be possible.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The town of Alsace has been named according to the decree of the President. The people, not regular soldiers of France, had no idle Frenchmen.

PARIS.

General Burnside has frequent interviews with Count Bismarck.

The French of Versailles announces the surrender to a force of 8,000 Prussians, with artillery, cavalry, and infantry from Etampes. The people of Versailles are awaiting the arrival of their friends, which they will march upon Rambouillet. The Prussians are said to be in possession of New French positions. The town is completely surrounded by a heavy cannonade. Orleans, who also is surrounded by artillery. They are making enormous requisitions of supplies for their commissariat upon the surrounding country.

The government has issued decrees for the purpose of disarming all parts in the army now in the city of Paris. All the ground in the rear of Chatillon and Le Bel, is quiet when I rode through them this morning. Everybody is coming down out of Paris. Everybody is coming cabbies, making with the exception of the Invalides in the direction of Paris. On the reverse it is a medley of soldiers and citizens, and the latter are in the majority. The soldiers are the worst of Liberty, Equality, Fraternity.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—The particulars of the battle before Metz, on Friday last, are received. The French made a sortie in force, and gained a temporary success, driving the Prussians back. The Prussians then received reinforcements, and drove the French back with great loss. The French fire from the fortifications of Metz continues incessantly. The French forces are being reinforced. Gen. Manteuffel, with his army, is said to be at Nancy.

DEATH OF ROBERT E. LEE.

A month of Robert E. Lee functions was the season of the Democratic party. Every shade of opinion which existed in that body at the outset of secession, or which developed during the progress of the war, or which finally settled down upon the close of the war, found its representative in the person of this man. He was the idol of the Secessionists at the beginning of the rebellion, and he was the favorite of the Conservatives at the end of it. He was the hero of the Democratic masses in the South, and he was the favorite of the Democratic leaders in the North. He was the representative of the Democracy in the field, and he was the representative of the Democracy in the cabinet. He was the Democratic candidate for President, and he was the Democratic candidate for Commander-in-Chief. He was the Democratic candidate for the highest office in the gift of the people, and he was the Democratic candidate for the highest office in the gift of the army. He was the Democratic candidate for the highest office in the gift of the people, and he was the Democratic candidate for the highest office in the gift of the army. He was the Democratic candidate for the highest office in the gift of the people, and he was the Democratic candidate for the highest office in the gift of the army.

A Heavy Vintage and Good Prices for Wines.

Desire for the Acquisition of a Volcano.

A Story About an Earthquake.

Diggers of the Yosemite.

Anti-Coolieism and One of its Leaders.

[FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 6, 1870.

Things are decidedly dull in California at this time, but for what reason I am wholly at a loss to say. The wheat crop is near ripe and is selling at good prices. The vintage is a full one, and prices for wine and brandy point; the yield of the raisins is fully up to the average. All of last month, or a greater portion of "dull times." My own impression is, that we are such chronic growlers that we don't know what "dull times" are, by present cry of growling, from shelf to shelf of trade. It is true, that few in California can be said to be making fortunes hastily, as they did in the old "flush times" of '49, but the community generally is fairly prosperous to beyond doubt.

THE VINTAGE.

As I have said, the vintage of 1870 will be a large one, and prices will rule high. The crops of the European war opening off the usual foreign supply, but more on account of the fact that the vineyards of France, so well known and in better demand at the East and at home, will be very good. Some enthusiastic parties estimate the vintage of California at 20,000,000 gallons; others at 15,000,000. I place that a safer estimate would be from 8,000,000 to 12,000,000 of wine and brandy together.

Two years ago the vintage crop fell unusually low, as the vineyards produce more every other year for heavy years, and the area of new ground planted in vineyards is steadily increasing. Five years hence the yield of the gold mines, wheat fields, and vineyards of California will be of nearly equal value.

VOLCANOES.

We have been kept in dread of a freak of nature on our southern border, and feel just as a people. Last week a volcano broke out within eight of San Diego, just over the line in Mexican soil. It cost little consequence; the Chief says so, and of course he ought to know. The crater is on the summit of a mountain on the strip of the land of "our sister republic," as we will not call it in spite of Juarez, in order to have the volcano in California. Some of the people of San Diego, however, are afraid their opinion of Olive Lopez, who discovers that "it don't pay to go to the Centennial," is not correct, and that California can be the volcano instead of Mexico. One of these days Olive Lopez will discover that "it don't pay to go to the Centennial," and that we are in California can be the volcano instead of Mexico. I do not think her guess as big a one as she thinks herself; and as the gain crops by working deep, I reckon Olive Lopez will have to dig deeper to guess it out correctly, stand it——

Just here I am interrupted by the Chief, who says the Yosemite is "played out," and that we must take care to inform us that the Yosemite is not played out. He says he has just been to the Yosemite. He says he has spent $3,000 of his own money in improving the trail to the Yosemite. He says he has spent all the public money he can get hold of in improving the trail to the Yosemite. He says he has spent all the money he can get hold of in improving the trail to the Yosemite. He says he has spent all the money he can get hold of in improving the trail to the Yosemite. [FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 4, 1870.

Things are decidedly dull in California at this time, but for what reason I am wholly at a loss to say. The wheat crop has been fair, and is selling at good prices. The vintage is a full one, and prices for wine and brandy point the world as the miners is fully up to the average. All of last month, or a good portion of it, was called "dull times." My own impression is, that we say such chronic grumblers that we don't know what else to say and keep on growling, from sheer force of habit. It is true, that few in California can be said to be making fortunes rapidly, as they did in the old "flush times;" but that the community generally is fairly prosperous is beyond doubt.

THE VINTAGE.

As I have said, the vintage of 1870 will be a large one, probably the largest since the close of the European war cutting off the usual foreign supply, but more on account of the fact that you, when are no longer boiled brown and in better demand at the East and at home, will be very good. Some enthusiastic parties estimate the vintage of California at 20,000,000 gallons of wine and brandy together. Two years ago, only carrying this estimate, as the biographer professes, three years prior to that for many years, and the area of new ground planted in vines annually is steadily increasing. Five years hence the yield of the gold mines, and the wheat and vineyards of California will be of nearly equal value.

VOLCANOES.

We have been startled of late by a freak of nature on our southern border, and feel hurt as a people. Last week a volcano burst out suddenly at night of San Diego, just over the line, on Mexican soil. Is not this outrageous? The Gulf says no, and growls for having a small strip of the land of "our sister republic," who will not sell it on "our own terms, in order to have the volcano in California." Seriously, that Mexico, with a population of 8,000,000 only, has a dozen volcanoes of more, and one of them, Popocatapetl, is the highest peak on the continent, and has been ascended to the summit of the crater, while we have not one. I do not care what party is in power in Mexico for the time being, I would be in favor of the acquisition of the whole country—the two or three hundred second-hand cents in Southern and Central Mexico, which have been settled for at least a hundred years, and a hundred years of confusion and humiliation to us as a nation. It says that we paid $7,500,000 for the insurance of Alaska. And now are about to put down liberally for a road, nothing refusing to offset them in the Pacific Ocean.

Again, volcanoes serve to give vent to the underground fires and prevent earthquakes. We have a surplus of earthquakes and no volcanoes. By all means let us have the volcano, by hook or by crook, one when it may.

SPEAKING OF EARTHQUAKES

reminds me of a little story. When the last grand tremor of 1868 was shaking up San Francisco, "Carleton," who had just arrived from India, on his way home to Boston, was on a river steamer coming east. In the city and missed the grand shock. This was a great disappointment to him, and he expressed his regrets quite emphatically at the dinner table, when the steamer was making connection with the mountain train. He was willing something of the moment. He had always been anxious to experience an earthquake, and if they involved the loss of the world, he had missed this grand one, confound it!" Fun was made of him, and he got to more, the building to creak and groan, and the plastering to fall—one of the sleepy-eyed of the after-snacks being off—and a rush was made down stairs into the street. The pretender was led by Carleton, who took three steps at a bounce all the way down, leaving his hat behind him. He did not stop to look back. He was the first one for the wharf, took passage for Sacramento, got on the Overland train, and when near 100 to Elko or Argenti, telegraphed back for his baggage to be sent on from the hotel after him, and took the next train east. I do not know had all the chicken-pie he wanted, then and there.

Up to this time, we have had no earthquakes worth mentioning for two years, and people are looking back to the days of the old times and our stem up. This is our earthquake period, and, fortunately, San Francisco now here knows its determination to stay over us all the time, for the express purpose of seeing us die. I do not want to see anybody killed, or anybody's house knocked down, but I am willing to risk a little sufficient to prevent such results, without quite reaching them. Some like the Boston Mouse, is fast getting tired of it, and go home satisfied. I am the more anxious for this from the fact that has failed to meet the expectations of two individuals, both of whom have combed me point with their gate-scene. One of these people is Olive Logan, who declared she had "if God pay to go to the Yosemite!" Well, the public of California owns to the same sentiment very quickly with regard to her lectures. We do not think her quite so big a gun as she thought, herself, and we are not inclining do or going to the Yosemite. But for the Yosemite, and the grass or can possibly be, we refer you to the Rev. Mr. Something—I forget his other name—who came here a few years ago, and has hails from Boston, and does not approve of the Yosemite. He says he was charged $3.00 or $4.00 at the Yosemite for a glass of milk, all the provisions must be packed 25 to 30 miles on animal's backs, and the whole matter in the wake of his horn, no carpet on the floor, etc., etc. He don't think the Yosemite worth trying up to by half, and nearly equal to the Big Organ, Banker Hill Monument, or Boston Common. Bad for the Yosemite, again.

What a pass of benighted Hicks are the natives, and all the distinguished writers, and lovers of nature, who have flocked hither from all parts of the country, and upon many occasions, satisfied. Boston has spoken, and the Yosemite henceforth is dumb.

But, if the fame of the Yosemite were to speak, I wonder who El Capitan, and Half-dome, and the Big Trees, and the rushing snow Nevada? Would they do justice to the Hub Union? Would they do justice to the free, independent genius of Olive Logan—ticket, children in arms, half price,—and come up to the scratch of the home of the brave, and the land of the free, and the nursery of Massachusetts, or the Pacific Coast, and the cradle of Golden Bay? Such is the perversity of human nature that I am afraid their opinion of Olive Logan, and the Rev. Mr. Something, would be Hicks, and like that of other Californians.

ANTI-COOLIEISM AND ONE WHO OPPOSES.

One of the futile measures adopted by the "Anti-Coolies" to starve out the Chinese storers in San Francisco, is the establishment of a grand "Anti-Coolie Laundry Association," with a mammoth office, a clerical office, and an expensive laundry, at which work shall be done as cheaply as by the Chinese, and exclusively by white labor. The stock has been in part taken up by candidates for office, and the remainder by those who have been subscribed being defeated—their subscription or non-subscription being made a test of their fitness or unfitness for Anti-Coolie Conventions. Many subscribed, through fear that, if they did not do so, they would be put on the black list, and defeated in the convention or at the polls. A large building to be wanted in the business part of the city, and a fine fleet of wagons to call for and deliver the work. The whole will end very much as the Anti-Coolie movement has ended, in smoke. Not that Mayor Otis, who is the leading spirit of the movement, is not honest in his opposition to the Chinese, but he is not the man to carry out a movement of this kind. He is too much of a gentleman, and has too much sense. He is opposed to the Chinese because he thinks that they are a curse to the country, and not because he wishes to make political capital out of the question. He is not a demagogue, and is not the man to lead a mob. He is a man of character, and has the confidence of the community generally. He is a man of character, and has the confidence of the community generally. He is a man of character, and has the confidence of the community generally.

CHICAGO CHAMPIONS VS. NEW HAVENS.

It has been some months since base ball in a match game has been seriously played in or about Chicago, but the men surrounding it did not allow it to wrest the time honored championship from them without a struggle. Last month ago, the White Stockings took a trip down to Cincinnati, and succeeded in defeating the Red Stockings in a match game, which, considering the circumstances, was a most creditable performance. A very respectable minority of unprejudiced people pronounced the game a most unmitigated cinch, and the jury of the White Stockings, such as would have known any else, pronounced it a fair game, and the men themselves said that it was a stiff game, on the part of the White Stockings, such as would have known any else. The result of the game was that the Cincinnati men went home with the belief that they had been beaten by a team which was not up to the mark in respect to maturity of years, strength and power of it, and took great pride in the fact
